life. The first great danger comes from the singular fact of our large-hearted ness. Because we have always been a generous and sympathetic ter their conditions, and to strengther this organic Union. That they have bets a real asset to us is severed all question in finglish. Irish, Scotch and Welsh, mrs and women of blood and fron, with mene al and moral power came under God's benediction. People of other tongues came, Dutch, Germans, Swedes and Norvegians. They came with intelligent in-tincts that would make any nation rich and under the impact of this racial wa-riety was developed a race of men up-paralleled in the history of humanity. With the Civil war there came a change, and I only state an indisputable act of history when I say that subsequent inigrations from central southern, and southeastern Europe were not for the most part, peoples of the same more and northern Europe. They, too, has the opportunity of building up this country and themselves also, and they put the emphasis mainly upon the latter. These peoples certainly have some claim upon our sympathy and helpfulness, and they ance. Let us remember that they are peoples who were oppressed by civil authority. They felt that their home governments were their enemy and in their ignorance supposed that all governments were alike. Crossing the Atlantic in the atterage did not convert them. Not a few of them played the part of the viper, stinging the only hand under heaven that norance or not propaganda was started the test. The next peril that is testing our democracy is the tendency to disintegration. This is due to failure to amalgamate by perpetuating differences in languages, manners and customs.
